

Volunteering

Learn new skills and make a difference for sustainable transport

Enroute's volunteering opportunities for students

March 2025

Who we are

Enroute is a not-for-profit sustainable transport research group dedicated to promoting investment in and usage of sustainable transport across Great Britain. As a Community Interest Company, we focus on delivering social and environmental benefits through our comprehensive research activities and community engagement.

At the core of Enroute's mission is our commitment to producing professional and insightful research that advocates for improvements in public and active transport networks. Research, inspired and developed by our volunteer Transport Analysts, addresses various aspects of sustainable transport, aiming to present compelling cases for change to decision-makers.

Our recent research projects

- Returning International Rail Services to Kent: This study examines the challenges and necessities of reinstating international rail services to Kent, highlighting the potential benefits for regional connectivity and sustainability.
- Restoring Your Railway: Promises vs Progress in Northumberland and Nottinghamshire: An review of the practicalities and politics of the Restoring Your Railway scheme, considering two case studies in these regions.

In addition to our primary research activities, we engage in campaigns, visioning exercises, and regular consultation responses to promote sustainable transport on a wider scale. Our collaborative approach involves working with partner organisations, advocacy groups, and local authorities to achieve common goals.

Transport Analyst opportunities

2

We are seeking passionate individuals to join our team as Transport Analysts on a voluntary basis. This role offers a unique opportunity to contribute to impactful research and advocacy efforts in transport.

In this role, you will have the opportunity to conduct your own research on public/active transport, completely led by you, while benefitting from support from other team members. Additionally, you can engage with stakeholders to understand transport needs and challenges, contributing to your research project where you think it may be beneficial.

Volunteering with Enroute offers numerous benefits, including enhancing your CV through practical experience in research, data analysis, and project management. Our flexible commitment allows you to balance academic responsibilities with meaningful work, as volunteering opportunities are designed to fit around your schedule. You will also have the opportunity to organically develop new skills throughout your research development pipeline.

You will also have the chance to develop valuable skills such as teamwork, communication, and problem-solving, which are transferable to any career path. Moreover, by contributing to projects that promote sustainable transport solutions, you will make a tangible impact in your community. This role also provides networking opportunities, connecting you with professionals and like-minded individuals passionate about sustainability and transport.

We welcome applications from students across all disciplines. Whether you're studying transport-related subjects or not, if you're passionate about sustainability, mobility, or making a real impact, we'd love for you to join us. To apply for the Transport Analyst position, please visit our volunteering hub.

Other opportunities

3

At Enroute, we offer a dynamic and evolving range of volunteering roles beyond the Transport Analyst position. Our ever-changing list of vacancies caters to various skill sets and interests, reflecting our commitment to promoting and improving sustainable transport across Great Britain.

To view our current volunteering opportunities, please visit our volunteering hub. We regularly update our vacancies to align with our ongoing projects and organisational needs.

We are also continually seeking professionals with specialist expertise in transport or managerial fields such as IT, HR, or legal matters to join us as External Advisors. This informal, voluntary role allows you to provide valuable insights and guidance, supporting Enroute's development and initiatives.

If you possess experience or skills that could benefit our organisation but don't see a specific role listed, we encourage you to reach out. We value diverse talents and are always looking for support in various areas. Please email us at contact@enroute.cic.com to express your interest or discuss potential opportunities.

Volunteering

Learn more about our opportunities

Visit our volunteering hub at enroutecc.com/volunteer